WILSON'S FUTURE WORK. Wilson was much interested in the erection of a fine cathedral for the Catholic people of this city. As a stone mason he was more interested and expected to tr for some of the contracts in his line of business. That was one of the things that brought him here. He was waiting to try to secure a portion of that conemployment for many weeks. He had other prospects, too, in the way of building and had complemially re-marked to his father that when the spring set in there would be plenty of work. He was a hard worker, the tathe on Monday, previous to Christmas, he says, and wanted continuous employ
